Q: For loop or function to make list within list within list I have list of strings: string_list = ['a','b','c','d','e','f'] I need it to be a list that has list within list within list: string_list = [{ 'a' }, { 'b' }, { 'c' }, { 'd' }, { 'e' }, { 'f' }] I've been trying for loop, but it is not working. Please advise. A: Use a list comprehension [ {item} for item in string_list ] To actually use that list, you can convert it to a pandas dataframe. pd.DataFrame([ {item} for item in string_list ]) on • THE GUERRILLA ANGEL REPORT — A Wyoming advocacy group is planning to file a complaint against the state's Department of Health under the Americans with Disabilities Act. They're planning on filing it by the end of the year if the state has not responded with plans to create space at the proposed trans health care clinic to accommodate those with disabilities. "We have to step up and say we can't wait any longer," said Courtney Walker, Equality Wyoming Executive Director. "The state needs to build a clinic that is safe for our clients — including those with HIV and AIDS — if they want to get in line. We've waited long enough." The planned facility is part of the Wyoming Supreme Court's ruling that the state must expand its options for trans health care. Equality Wyoming cites 12 people who are currently medically unable to receive treatment at the planned Wyoming Health Care Facility. They d0c515b9f4
